"WORKING TOGETHER FOR A GREATER, SOUTHWEST"

The South's First Manufacturers of Waxed Paper and Glassine Bags

Increasing public interest in cleanliness and in health has created a demand for the waxed paper protection of food products that has rapidly advanced this company to prominence among Dallas industries.

Early in 1927 the Dixie Wax Paper Company, in keeping with its progressive spirit, installed the first equipment brought to the South to manufacture glassine bags, thereby maintaining its record as the pioneer in the Southern paper converting industry.

That the policies inaugurated when this company began operating five years ago have proven popular with its trade, is evidenced by the fact that Dixie salesmen regularly cover six States, and bring to Dallas a large volume of business that formerly went to Northern manufacturers.

The North Texas National Bank, in this series of advertisements, is pleased to present some of the outstanding leaders of commerce and industry that it is privileged to serve.

....."27 Years of Progress"

THE ORIGINAL DIXIE PLANT—1922

Pioneers in the field of protective packaging, DIXIE established the first waxed paper plant in the South in Dallas in 1922. Although DIXIE'S original plant facilities were small, they have since grown into two large, modern factories in two of the great cities of the south (Dallas and Memphis, Tenn.), and have licenses for manufacture of their patented products in California, Oregon, and the Dominion of Canada.

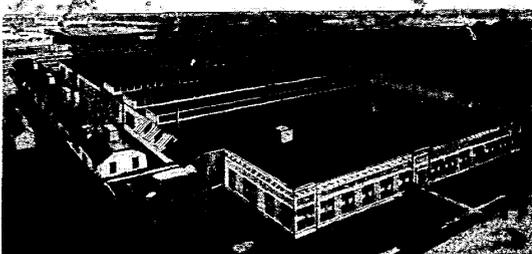

DIXIE'S modern Dallas plant in Oak Cliff is administrative headquarters for our organization. This plant was built in 1925, and is the home of the first manufactured All Waxed FRESHEN bag. Our Dallas plant serves the great Southwest.

DIXIE WAX PAPER COMPANY

DALLAS, TEXAS MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE

Our Memphis Plant was purchased in 1928, and has since doubled its capacity through DIXIE'S expansion program. Products manufactured here serve the eastern half of the United States.
